"Each one of my images exists, light burnt into silver grains, to remind you of a point in your life, a time and day where you moved forward with the flow of time. A moment where I froze in time your hopes and dreams, fears, everything that made up your life to that point. The moment you want to remember. That is what my images are: a reminder of your suspension in time, a reminder to the promises you made to yourself. Do you know the exact moment, or were you never really there?" - Mikhail Samuel
