My work speaks about the daily hustle which we face daily in our lives. We always strive for better days and the truth is this, we are all living inside the game playing to win but at times things they don't go as we plan and that doesn't mean we have failed, it only means we have to find new ways to make it in life.

I use lines that create rats or mouse because I draw my inspiration from them as I see them every day in my life moving up and down hustling for food, not seating waiting for food to come to them, which is the same with us hustlers meaning we must also make moves to survive and make our desire/dreams to come to life and it doesn't mean it will be easy for us hustlers to achieve our dream/desires as we will face some fallers and disappointments along the way, but we cannot let those things stand in our way of achieving our dreams.

The chess game you see in my work it speaks about life and how we should approach it meaning before making a move in life you must plan carefully so that you avoid lose because at the end, we are all in this game to win.
