‘Fodder’ questions the notion encapsulated in the Yoruba adage “Ko ma dabi ejo to koja lori apata ti ko nipa” which often sees children as long-term investments expected to yield profit in one way or the other. This piece highlights how this innocent belief can also lead to dehumanising and harmful outcomes. To create this collage artwork, candid photographs are digitally edited into collages in an attempt to create virtual repositories of memory - bending the boundaries of documentary and fictional storytelling.
