

Climate Change Series

R 17,391.30 ex. vat

Trees are a metaphor for families around the communities. I feel that a tree is a good metaphor to represent life, for instance, when you teach someone it's like planting a tree and when it grows, it bears fruits, this is a sign of gaining knowledge and being productive.

The roots represent a time frame of where the person is coming from, then the stem and the branches represent growth and success. The community uses trees for shade and some members solve community problems under the tree. I want my artworks to inspire people, for them to relate and change the world.

Frame	None
Medium	Monotype
Location	Johannesburg, South Africa
Height	76.00 cm
Width	101.50 cm
Artist	Ramarutha Makoba
Year	2024

