This striking original work features six rust-formed human silhouettes, each uniquely posed and arranged in a grid of six steel panels. The figures are rendered in oxidized steel, giving them a raw, textured appearance that contrasts beautifully with the smooth, geometric enamel backgrounds in hues of navy, teal, mint green, and sky blue. The interplay of rust and enamel evokes a tension between organic decay and modern structure, suggesting themes of anonymity, urban life, and the passage of time.

Perfect for collectors interested in mixed media, industrial textures, and contemporary figuration, this piece offers both conceptual depth and aesthetic impact.
