Self-Portrait: Night Serenity

Part of the Soul Soliloquy series, this self-portrait captures the stillness of the night as a space for both contemplation and renewal. The work reflects on how nighttime, often regarded as the most creative and introspective part of the day, invites us into moments of quiet dialogue with ourselves.

Here, the figure embodies the meditative pause before creation begins: a moment when the noise of the day fades and inner thoughts rise to the surface and then towards an ethereal space. The night becomes a metaphor, a space of vulnerability and serenity, uncertainty and possibility.
