

Adukrom The Season of the Tree

R 52,092.00

The painting features a woman at the center, gazing directly outward with a calm and confident expression. She wears a glossy, coral-orange garment that slips off her shoulders. Next to her, are two halved fruits resembling melons. Behind her, a large, twisting tree branch extends across a turquoise and ochre marbled background. The branch is alive with detail: various insects, a frog, moths, beetles, and a small animal skull are carefully painted along its surface. The composition combines naturalistic portraiture with surreal, organic surroundings, blending human presence with the textures and colors of a lush, dreamlike ecosystem.
